2001-12-09	2001-12-09	https://www.nytimes.com/2001/12/09/books/new-noteworthy-paperbacks-429864.html	New & Noteworthy Paperbacks	False	By Scott Veale THE BIOGRAPHER'S TALE, by A. S. Byatt. (Vintage International, $14.) In a literary fable populated by bickering scholars, writers and critical theorists, a graduate student named Phineas G. Nanson abandons his postmodern wanderings to write a biography of a noted biographer, and soon becomes lost in his subject's dizzying manuscripts (and sidetracked by his alluring niece). "The novelist's power amid the talk to configure love and that which is uncannily alive . . . exhilarates this book and its readers," Richard Eder wrote here in January. HITLER, 1936-45: Nemesis, by Ian Kershaw. (Norton, $21.95.) In the second and final volume of the author's acclaimed biography, Hitler emerges as a malign guru with an unerring sense of other people's fears, vanities, greed and bloodlust. He lived vicariously through the crowd, allowing aggrieved Germans to project their fantasies onto him. Last year our reviewer, Ian Buruma, said this "brilliant account" is depressing "not only because of what it tells us about Hitler but also because of what it says about the masses who followed him." In The Third Reich: A New History, by Michael Burleigh (Hill & Wang, $18), Nazism is seen as both a totalitarian system and a political religion. "Burleigh demonstrates a subtle feel for . . . those gray zones of life where wrenching human dilemmas confronted those who cheered and served Hitler as well as those who resisted him," V. R. Berghahn wrote here in 2000. RIMBAUD, by Graham Robb. (Norton, $18.95.) The colorful life of the French poet Arthur Rimbaud (1854-91), who stopped writing verse before he was 20 and published only one book before he died at 37, has been chewed over many times before, but this account, which was chosen by the editors of the Book Review as one of the best books of 2000, both demystifies its elusive subject and calmly reassesses his artistic merits. The result is "the single best work" about a "haunting and haunted poet," Richard Howard said in these pages. AFTER THE WAR, by Alice Adams. 					author displays her typically affable style, in which truths are revealed indirectly, as she catches up on the lives of the Baird family and the denizens of the Southern college town to which they fled during the Depression. "Adams dips in and out of lives jauntily, humorously, in a kind of eternal present tense," Molly Haskell wrote in the Book Review last year. THE LAST HOT TIME, by John M. Ford. (Tor/Tom Doherty, $12.95.) In a Chicago transformed by a rip in the fabric of reality, a young paramedic takes up with a gang of humans and "elves," the former rulers of Earth who have returned with their magical powers and who resemble gangsters more than Tolkien creatures. "Beyond the life-or-death tests and the mind-bending puzzles, this is fundamentally a love story, with a deeply satisfying climax," Gerald Jonas said here earlier this year. FEAR AND LOATHING IN AMERICA: The Brutal Odyssey of an Outlaw Journalist, 1968-1976, by Hunter S. Thompson. Edited by Douglas Brinkley. (Touchstone/Simon & Schuster, $15.) The second volume of a projected trilogy of collected correspondence by the monstre sacré of American journalism features a flood of maniacal, chemically addled dispatches on everything from Vietnam and Watergate to life on the campaign trail and his "death-battle with the taxman." "Reading Hunter Thompson is like using gasoline for after-shave - - bracing," Christopher Buckley wrote in these pages last year. BLUE RIDGE, by T. R. Pearson. (Penguin, $13.) This novel splices together two crime stories: in one, a sheriff tries to link a pile of human bones found on the Appalachian Trail to a body

					By Scott Veale SELECTED POEMS AND PROSE OF PAUL CELAN. Translated by John Felstiner. (Norton, $17.95.) This collection of work by one of the greatest European poets of the postwar period is translated by the author of the 1995 biography "Paul Celan: Poet, Survivor, Jew." Felstiner's "respectful, nuanced renderings" include "poems from all periods of Celan's life as well as his sparse but illuminating prose pieces," Mark M. Anderson wrote here last year. The book "should prove invaluable . . . for all readers interested in the full range of Celan's writing." STORK CLUB: America's Most Famous Nightspot and the Lost World of Caf�� Society, by Ralph Blumenthal. (Back Bay/Little, Brown, $14.95.) A reporter for The New York Times tells of the rise and fall of the golden-roped nightclub that epitomized New York glamour during World War II. In its heyday, it was the ultimate "in" spot, where celebrities and gossip columnists rubbed elbows with politicians and bootleggers. "This evocative, well-researched book . . . is an important addition to our social history," Pete Hamill wrote in these pages in 2000. DREAMCATCHER, by Stephen King. (Pocket Books, $7.99.) It sounds tame enough: four middle-aged buddies on their annual hunting trip in a remote cabin in Maine. But it turns out they're telepathic, and, worse, a disoriented hunter turns up on their doorstep with a weasel-like alien inhabiting his body. Needless to say, it isn't E. T. The result is "a frenzied, multilayered, ever-accelerating nightmare" of a novel "that has to be read in enormous gulps," Colin Harrison said here earlier this year. KING DAVID: A Biography, by Steven L. McKenzie. (Oxford University, $15.95.) Nothing is known of David outside the Hebrew Bible, but in a spirited cross-

"McKenzie is little short of brilliant." In Papal Sin: Structures of Deceit, by Garry Wills (Image/Doubleday, $14.95), an eminent historian fires off a broadside against the modern papacy, depicting an arrogant Roman Catholic hierarchy riddled with dishonesty and unwilling to face up to its record during the Holocaust. Last year our reviewer, Richard Rorty, called this a "splendidly passionate polemic." FIRST NIGHTS: Five Musical Premieres, by Thomas Forrest Kelly. (Yale University, $16.95.) A Harvard professor reconstructs the stormy first performance of Stravinsky's "Sacre du Printemps" in Paris in 1913 and four other shocks of the new in the classical music world. Last year in these pages, Jonathan Keates found this "a brilliant essay" that "with its abundant portfolios of documents and sensitively chosen illustrations . . . has us crying 'Oh, that we were there!' " DREAM STUFF: Stories, by David Malouf. (Vintage International, $12.) In this collection of short fiction, Australia is portrayed as a land of surprises and changing possibilities, where the past itself is open to question. Many of the characters protest loss on a personal and cosmic scale, even as the author suggests that nothing is lost forever. Last year in the Book Review, Michael Wood admired these "nine haunting stories" about a continent that is both youthful and old, filled with both light and darkness. THE UNEXPECTED LEGACY OF DIVORCE: A 25 Year Landmark Study, by Judith Wallerstein, Julia Lewis and Sandra Blakeslee. (Hyperion, $14.95.) Tracking the postdivorce fates of 60 California families since 1971, the authors examine the long-term toll of divorce on children as they reach adulthood. Among the findings: only 40 percent of the children in the study ever married, less than half the figure for the general population. "One of this book's virtues is the way it combines research and analysis with advice to real people facing the breakup of their marriages," Margaret	Registration Effective Date	Registration Number	Secondary Registration Number	Secondary Registration Effective Date

					Talbot wrote here in 2000. A GOOD BYE, by Bonnie Burnard. (Picador USA, $14.) This minutely detailed first novel follows the fortunes of an ever-expanding family in southern Ontario, from the postwar flush of the late 1940s to a wedding 50 years later. The result is an "intricate and rewarding book" with "a keen appreciation for the sad, surprising, joyous, important things that happen to people whose lives . . . could be called normal in the extreme," Louisa Kamps said here last year. 					By Scott Veale the Quick AND the Dead, By Joy Williams. (Vintage Contemporaries, $13.) Filled With Wounded Characters and Hectoring Spirits Running Loose In the Desert Southwest, This Novel Revolves Around A Motherless 15-Year-Old Girl Who Is An Animal Lover of the Prickliest, Most Judgmental Sort. the Result Is AnOdd, Intelligent, Unsettling and Sometimes Spectacularly Uningratiating Tale, Jennifer Schuessler Said Here Last Year.Williams'S Language Runs With Virtuosity Across A Wide Range, From Dead-On Vernacular To Gorgously, Unabashed Oracular. Licks of Love: Short Stories and A Sequel, By John Updike. (Ballantine, $14.) the Dozen Stories Here -- Most About Erotic Memories -- Share A Theme of Retrospect and A Tone of Forgiveness. A Novella, Rabbit Remembered,Brings Readers Up To Speed With Harry Angstrom'S Family and Relations, Who Gather For A Dysfunctional Thanksgiving Dinner To Pay Tribute To Updike'SNarcissistically Impaired Antihero. Last Year In the Book Review, A. O. Scott Praisedthe Wry, Measured Sense of Perspective the CollectionBrings To Updike'S Earlier Work,

(Theia/Hyperion, $16.95.) the Author, A Retired History Professor and Former Foreign Service Officer In Saigon During the 1960'S, spent 20 years reconstructing the life of the elusive leader who was the architect of Vietnamese independence. Duiker's magnificent . . . biography manages not only to fill in the missing pieces of Ho's life but to provide the best account of Ho as a diplomat and A Strategist, Frances FitzGerald wrote here in 2000. PURGATORIO, By Dante Alighieri. Translated By W. S. Merwin. (Knopf, $19.95.) The middle part of The Divine Comedy may be short on the fire-and-brimstone atmospherics of Inferno, but this new translation, Paired With the Original Italian, Reveals Its Subtler Pleasures (Like Music and Human Emotion) As It Follows Dante and Virgil on their tour of the mountain where souls destined for salvation purge their sins. 'Purgatorio' is a ravishing poem, Daniel Mendelsohn wrote here in 2000, and we should be grateful for Merwin's reverent version. WHAT REMAINS, By Nicholas Delbanco. (Warner, $13.95.) Flipping Back and Forth From the 1930'S Through the 1990'S, This Elegiac, Deeply Personal Novel Tracks the Fortunes of A Cultured Jewish Family That Escapes Nazi Germany and Struggles To Realign Itself In London and America. The result is a work of wise maturity and Limpid Love, Catherine Lockerbie said in these pages last year. MY GOODNESS: A Cynic's Short-Lived Search for Sainthood, By Joe Queenan. (Hyperion, $14.95.) What Happens When A Notorious Satirist With A Withering Mean Streak Tries To Reinvent Himself As A Paragon of Virtue and Apostle of the Ethically Correct? Not Surprisingly, he hits a few potholes on the path to niceness. Somewhere, Mencken Is Beaming, Bruce McCall wrote here in 2000. 'My Goodness' has to be the year's most sinfully rewarding guilty pleasure. ECHOES DOWN THE CORRIDOR: Collected Essays, 1944-2000, By Arthur Miller. 					from the 17th-century Salem witch trials to Stalinism. Miller is hardly our leading optimist, Nora Sayre said in these pages last year. But he is an adventurous student of change, an unwavering dissident. IN SEARCH OF ISLAMIC FEMINISM: One Woman's Global Journey, By Elizabeth Warnock Fernea. (Anchor, $15.) the Author, Who Spent Two Years Traveling In the Middle East, reveals how feminism means different things to different people in the Muslim world but almost always involves tremendous survival skills. Fernea is a storyteller who captivates her reader with sights and Smells and Tastes, Elaine Sciolino said here in 1998. THE FAMILY ORCHARD, By Nomi Eve. (Vintage International, $13.) Set Mainly In Israel, This First Novel Spans Six Generations of An Earthy, Passionate Family and 160 Years of Israeli History Stretching Back To Turkish-Ruled Palestine In the 1830'S. Last Year Our Reviewer, Lore Dickstein, admired Eve's startling, Imaginative and Allegorical Writing Which Sparkles and Surprises and never settles for the predictable. Scott Veale

					By Scott Veale MARTYRS CROSSING, by Amy Wilentz. (Ballantine, $14.) This first novel by a former Israel correspondent for The New Yorker explores the fraught political conflict there through the story of a tragic, accidental encounter at a highway checkpoint, and its effect on the two characters involved: a Palestinian-American mother and a young Israeli soldier. "Wilentz knows the world she writes about very well, and her descriptions have a solid specificity that lends authority to her fiction," Claire Messud said here last year. Lower incomes and higher risks of poverty are among the enormous costs paid by women who choose to bear and raise children, according to a financial journalist who based her study on extensive interviews and research. The result is a "powerful and important" work, Paul Starr wrote here in 2001. "Written with a fine passion and at times a biting wit, it challenges the received ideas of economists, feminists and conservatives alike and ought to be read by all of them." TOO FAR AFIELD, by Günter Grass. (Harvest/Helen and Kurt Wolff/Harcourt, $15.) Real and imaginary people and events bounce off one another in this complex novel about how history -- from the revolutions of 1848 to the Nazi era and its aftermath -- inundates the lives of ordinary Germans. "It is the work of a seasoned craftsman, certain of what he wants to do, completely in control of his gifts," James J. Sheehan wrote in these pages in 2000. DIFFERENT HOURS: Poems, by Stephen Dunn. (Norton, $12.) This Pulitzer Prize-winning collection balances the casual and the vivid as it plumbs the ambiguity and mystery of human relations. "Dunn has a gift for aphorism . . . but his most startling ability is the way he maps out the subtle, mordant shifts of adult morality," Emily Nussbaum said here last year. The same publisher has reissued Felt: Poems, by Alice Fulton ($12), which features kinetic verse obsessed with identity, yearning and intimacy and filled with various forms of wordplay. Last year our reviewer, Megan Harlan, admired "the power of Fulton's verbal pyrotechnics." Norton has also restored to print Heroin: And Other Poems, by Charlie Smith ($11), a record of an unnamed narrator's struggles with and recovery from heroin addiction. The poems "are as mournful as any song Hank Williams ever wrote, and often as lovely," David Kirby wrote in these pages in 2001. I'D HATE MYSELF IN THE MORNING: A Memoir, by Ring Lardner Jr. (Thunder's Mouth/Nation, $14.95.) 					apart. The result is an "eloquent memoir" that is "a scrupulous, compassionate cultural history of a surreal time," Patricia Bosworth wrote in the Book Review in 2000. THE TIPPING POINT: How Little Things Can Make a Big Difference, by Malcolm Gladwell. (Back Bay/Little, Brown, $14.95.) Borrowing terminology from medical science, the author argues that fads -- whether ideas, products or behaviors -- spread leisurely like viruses until they explode into an epidemic. As evidence he cites everything from the brief resurgence of Hush Puppies to suicide and smoking rates to the drop in New York City's crime. In 2000 in these pages, Alan Wolfe found this "a lively, timely and engaging study." MAESTRO: Greenspan's Fed and the American Boom, by Bob Woodward. (Touchstone/Simon & Schuster, $14.) Everyone talks in this admiring portrait of the Federal Reserve chairman, Alan Greenspan, and in the process the author "lucidly explains the axes of intellectual and political disagreement over monetary policy, productivity growth, irrational exuberance and more, shedding new light on major conflicts of the Greenspan era," Robert Kuttner wrote in the Book Review in 2000. Greenspan: The Man Behind Money, by Justin Martin (Perseus, $17.50), focuses more on its subject's personal life, including his early career as a musician and his tenure as former President Gerald R. Ford's chief economic adviser. "Martin helps the reader see the way Greenspan's earlier career made him such an effective Fed chairman," Kuttner said. Scott Veale
